

Getting passed over for the internal role hurt. You were qualified. You knew the company.

Here is what nobody tells you: when that role was posted, the decision was usually already made.

The people who get tapped are not the ones who applied. They are the ones leadership already knew. From every cross-team conversation, every moment of stepping up before anyone asked.

The interview did not start when the role opened. It started years ago.

#leadership #careergrowth #techleadership #engineeringmanager #internaljobs #leadershipdevelopment
#careertips #promotions